PRODUCT DESCRIPTION

Bauhaus Carl J. Jucker, desk light, Germany, design 1923, later production.

This metal desk light is interesting due to its versatile positions that this lamp can be put in. The shade of the light can be adjusted as can the position of the fixture that is attached to the shade. Due to the variety of this construction, the lamp can be used for many different uses. This technical manner of designing is very typical for design from the Bauhaus period where the constructive and functional element of the objects were leading for the outcome of the overall design.
