PRODUCT DESCRIPTION

Paul Kingma attr. Midcentury oak and slate table on iron base, Belgium circa 1950.

Dimensions are: 33.85" x 16.53" (height).

The midcentury Brutalist slate and oak table on a wrought iron base attributed to Paul Kingma is a stunning piece of furniture that beautifully blends natural materials with Industrial Design elements.

The table features a round slate top, ceramic mosaic with smooth edges and a natural grey-black color that contrasts beautifully with the warm, honey-brown oak trim.

The base of the table is crafted from wrought iron that adds visual interest and a touch of edginess to the piece.

The iron has been finished with a subtle patina that gives it an aged, vintage look that complements the midcentury aesthetic of the table.

Dimensions are: 33.85" x 16.53" (height).
